OUR STORY

The Criterion Hotel stands as a proud testament to the rich history of our beloved town. For over a century, this iconic establishment has been at the centre of Warwick's social & cultural life.

Originally constructed during the heady days of the Australian gold rush, the Criterion Hotel quickly became a hub for prospectors, miners & travellers seeking their fortune in the region's goldfields.

In 1885, Jeremiah Allman & his family took the reins of the Criterion Hotel, marking the beginning of a storied legacy. In 1916, construction of the building you know & love, was completed, where the Criterion cemented itself as a cornerstone of the community & quickly became the go-to gathering place.

Over the years, the hotel has witnessed the ebb & flow of history, serving as a backdrop to the stories of generations who have called Warwick home & remains a cherished establishment to the community.
